Hearing Aid Dispensing

Hearing aids and other devices can enhance quality of life, and help individuals adapt to their hearing loss.

Central Auditory Processing (CAP) Testing evaluates the brain's ability to process information presented auditorally. As a result, recommendations may be provided to assist parents and school systems in developing and implementing appropriate learning strategies.

Custom Earmolds are available to be coupled with hearing aids. Musician ear plugs, custom swim molds, and noise protection are also offered.

Auditory Rehabilitation Services are provided for people of all ages. Counseling, guidance and support are available for newly diagnosed children and adults, as well as their families. Sitrin Audiologist Dr. Kimberly Keane works closely with Sitrin speech-language pathologists to develop the most effective strategies to improve overall communication for those with hearing loss.

Upon obtaining a hearing evaluation, patients will be counseled regarding their hearing loss, and hearing aid options available to them.
